Excerpt: . for delay of payment, except simple interest and the costs of suit. The only power of coercion consisted in multiplying suits, I obtained a subscription of a hundred dollars each, from one hundred individuals and firms; which fund was placed in the hands of William Cochran, a broker, for management. We addressed a circular, which I drew up, addressed to all the country banks, informing them of our determination to put an end to the system of evasion and delay by legal means. The first call was on the Northampton Bank, which had lately gone into new hands; who were putting out their bills freely, with a view of playing the non-payment game. They began paying in fourpence-halfpennies. The agent employed, Lewis Tappan, was instructed to go on counting the money tendered him, but to inform the cashier, that, if they turned him out...
